Developing - Year 8 Non-Fiction Speech Writing

Task: Convince the class that your villain should be loved, not loathed

Is dumping your chemical waste in the drinking water ok?

According to Mr Burns, it's ok!

Mr Burns is a common character in the TV series, The Simpsons. He attempts to create chemical and strong acid to sell and become evil over Springfield. But can you blame him after his backstory?

When he was younger, Mr Burns wasn't cared by his mother. He came up with no love and he was hated at school. This all led him to being evil and want to rule Springfield.

He has had many victims, all of them being the civilians of Springfield. He pollutes their drinking water with his chemical waste and does experiments that make the community a hell, with drainage issues and explosions.

Attempt to match the style by using a rhetorical question to open the argument.

Accurate use of Standard English isn't always evident.

Repeated use of rhetorical question for effect.

Attempt to use emotive language is simple.

Basic sentences where accurate use of Standard English isn't evident.

Use of repetition for effect.

Idea is straightforward.

Use of repeated emotive language for effect.

Punctuation is generally accurate throughout but isn't ambitious.

Spelling is generally accurate, with more complex words spelt incorrectly.