

Boring Old Premier League

By Jake Welsh

Football in England is suffering in the midst of wealthy clubs dominating the league tables leading to boredom and waning enthusiasm from fans. There is no way around it: The Premier League is getting boring.

A fanatic football fan at Crawshaw Academy, Mr Murtagh was keen to share his views that “the Premier League is becoming boring because the rich teams are getting richer, and it is usually the same top 6. The other 14 teams are just battling to not get relegated.”

Fans are frustrated with the politics of the Premier League, stating they “would like it to be more like American sport, where it’s a good day out instead of teams like Southampton and West Brom who would rather go for a draw than a win because they don’t want to get relegated. In America, they can’t get relegated so they would always go for the win.” This frustration is leaking into viewing figures have been slowly falling since 2016 season.
